Valve World: uniting the global flow control community

Valve World unites the global flow control community through a long-established and highly respected range of global multimedia. Publications, online and face-to-face platforms all focus on industrial valves, actuators and associated products with an assurance of strong quality technical content.

Valve World magazine

Published ten times per year (printed and digital) the magazine focuses on end-user experience and practical applications. Each issue features a range of technical articles on topics such as valve design, fugitive emissions, fluid control, sealing technology, and actuation. It also covers topical issues such as maintenance & repair, high-temperature/high-pressure applications, abrasive service and standardisation.

Online

With a substantial global following, the Valve World website includes daily news updates, a freely available technical article archive, feature stories, event updates and advertising opportunities.

Social media

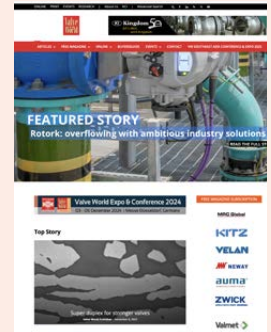

With extensive global reach, the Valve World social media channels reach flow control experts and users around the world. For example, over 33,000 members on LinkedIn receive multiple updates per week.

Newsletter

The Valve World Weekly Update is circulated 47 times per year to over 31,000 global subscribers. The newsletter shares industry news as well as feature stories from the website.

Conferences & Exhibitions

For over thirty years, Valve World events have brought our global community together to network, do business, and share knowledge. From China to Germany, the US to SE Asia, Valve World conferences & exhibitions are highly-respected across the industry for their technical content and global reach.
